There has been a significant evolution in the science and technical understanding of vapor intrusion in the last 15 years. These issues are poised to become a dominant driver of investigation and remediation at sites potentially impacted by volatile compounds. This program will present a 360 degree view of vapor intrusion issues from the technical, regulatory, and legal perspectives. During her portion of the presentation, Campbell will address potential concerns for site owners (and counsel representing them), including site reopeners, toxic tort and property damage claims, workplace exposure issues, and implications for real estate transactions. She will also provide practice pointers for managing vapor intrusion risks from characterization through to mitigation and remediation.

Kate Campbell is a litigation partner at the firm, where she focuses her practice on environmental, toxic tort and class action litigation, and Superfund and other enforcement matters. Since joining the firm in 2003, she has developed considerable experience in in litigating federal, state and private enforcement actions under an array of environmental statutes, in representing potentially responsible parties in cost recovery and contribution actions under CERCLA and state law, and in defending complex toxic tort claims for personal injury, wrongful death and medical monitoring.

Campbell now serves as the firm's Hiring Partner after chairing its Summer Associate Program for five years. Outside of the office, she teaches Toxic Tort Litigation as an adjunct professor at Drexel University Thomas R. Kline School of Law.
