- 11:30 a.m.: More Time with the Residents

What:

Eight to 10 middle schoolers from the Center for Faith Justice will spend the morning with the senior residents at Spring Hills Somerset Assisted Living. They'll begin their day joining their exercise program. When it's over, they'll bring the residents some water and spend some time getting to know them. From there, the kids will pair up with a senior to create a Wooden Spoon friend. Whether they choose to make a ballerina, crocodile, angel or cow, everyone will have paint, yarn, toile and a whole lot of fun. The kids will then help the seniors get to lunch at the end of their morning.

The Center for Faith Justice works to inspire the next generation of leaders by creating programs to serve those in need. Since their founding in 2008, they have served more than 4,000 young adults whom have completed more than 100,000 hours of service.
