SPRING HILLS SINGING WOODS ASSISTED LIVING AGAIN RECEIVES POSITIVE RECOGNITION WITH “DEFICIENCY FREE SURVEY” FOR THE SECOND YEAR IN A ROW FROM THE OHIO DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

“Deficiency Free” Recognition Indicates the Residence Meets the Highest Standards
In Statewide Benchmarks for Care and Safety

DAYTON, OH (May 5, 2016) – For the second year in a row, Spring Hills Singing Woods Assisted Living earned the industry-respected designation of “deficiency free” when they were found to be in 100 percent compliance with state requirements from the Ohio Department of Health (ODH). ODH conducted the survey on April 4, 2016. The state conducts this survey annually and scores senior care facilities based on a number of criteria to assess resident care and resident safety.

The Ohio Assisted Living Association (OALA), which represents the largest number of residential care facilities in the state, further recognized the achievement of Spring Hills Singing Woods for promoting excellence in senior care options. Jean B. Thompson, Executive Director OALA, has awarded Spring Hills Singing Woods a certificate of commendation and said, “Deficiency free surveys are the result of hard work, effort, and true concern for residents. Many years of deficiency free surveys are all of that on a consistent basis. Congratulations on this outstanding achievement!”

Deirdre Middlestetter, Executive Director of Spring Hills Singing Woods, commented on the dedication it takes to be “deficiency free” two years in a row, “Everyone at Spring Hills Singing Woods works tirelessly to provide for residents the very best care year-round. Having received this designation twice in a row is affirmation that we are succeeding and I, for one, couldn’t be more proud of the entire Singing Woods team for always going above and beyond.”
