

<http://www.delcotimes.com/article/DC/20171008/NEWS/171009660>

DAILY TIMES

MOVIES AND TV

By NEAL ZOREN, Digital First Media Television Columnist

Watching some good music

Readers know Channel 12's "On Your" and "Friday Arts" are among my favorite programs, not only because they introduce viewers to musicians and other performers they have a good chance of seeing live but because they represent local production of a kind no other station is doing.

"Friday Arts" attracts more attention than mine. It earned a recent Mid-Atlantic Emmy in the Outstanding Magazine Program category.

Both shows are produced by Trudi Brown and launched their seasons this past weekend.

Two of the first "On Tour" installments for this season were shot at the Ardmore Music Hall. Next's weeks programs, airing 9 p.m. Oct. 19 and noon Oct. 22, feature Donavon Frankenreiter who is not only a musician but a world-class surfer who says his time among the waves influence his songwriting. Shows that aired this weekend headlined Melvin Seals. Keep an eye out for that show in rerun.

Ubiquitous musician-arranger Paul Jost and visits to nearby music venues are also mentioned by Brown as she talks about this program year. Brown, who was at Channel 10 before her near 30-year tenure at 'HYY, was recently inducted into the Mid-Atlantic National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences's Silver Circle Society for her career of broadcasting achievement.