EXERCISING SENIORS BRAINS KEEPS THEM SHARP AND HEALTHY

Henderson, NV (March 28, 2018) – When people want to be healthy, diet and exercise is their focus. However, it is also important to keep their brains healthy, especially in seniors as they experience declines in many areas of cognitive function. Poet's Walk Henderson factors this in to how their residents spend each day with Signature Touches, a Poet's Walk national program that focuses on and helps to improve the mind, body and spirit. It represents years of research on how creating a healthy living is the foundation of every aspect of life. The activities, including writing, poetry reading, art, Tai Chi, gardening so much more, are all designed to offer choices that encompass the intellectual and social as well as the physical, cultural, creative, and more.

"While we know our residents enjoy our traditional activities, we find when we engage their minds, they thrive," said Mark Shaffer, Executive Director at Poet's Walk Henderson. "Whether it's music therapy, crossword or jigsaw puzzles, a guest speaker or asking them to write poetry or an autobiography, they're able to regain a little more of who they were when they were young. The growth and happiness when this happens is exhilarating for us all."

There are many ways to help a loved one keep their brain sharp. Here are some examples:

- Puzzles
The challenge that a puzzle provides is intellectually stimulating. This exercise could increase mental capacity.
- Reading and Writing
Whether writing a letter, a story or a diary entry, the act of writing can improve memory. It can also improve the ability to communicate. Research has shown that reading can improve brain function in many ways. Just the act of reading a novel has been found to enhance connectivity in the brain and improve brain function.
- Sleep Well
A full night's sleep and/or naps will help keep the mind and brain nourished.
- Arts
Practicing the arts: painting, drawing or even coloring keeps the brain exercised and active. Poet's Walk incorporates this into their Art Therapy program.
- Listening to Music
Music has been found to improved cognition and memory function. When a song with personal significance is played for a resident, it's wonderful to see the positive change that happens instantly in that person.
