PET THERAPY HELPS SENIORS AT POET'S WALK SARASOTA

Poet's Walk Sarasota, A Spring Hills Memory Care Community, Opening in January 2018

Sarasota, FL (October 18, 2017) – Pet therapy can be a helpful method for senior citizens struggling with life events beyond their control. Poet's Walk Sarasota, a Spring Hills Memory Care Community, has seen animals help their senior residents adjust to life thanks to pet and animal-assisted therapy. The unique bond and fulfillment that comes with caring for a pet creates opportunity for engagement and increased moments of joy. Whether having a dog, cat or even miniature horse visit the community, this tried-and-true technique helps seniors stay connected during the aging process. Poet's Walk communities, located throughout the United States, have created memory care environments that provide an engaging atmosphere and promotes positivity and compassion. The team members at Poet's Walk know that pet therapy promotes both physical and mental well-being for seniors.

Caring for a pet offers a companionship which can contribute to an enhanced quality of life. Emerging research in animal assisted therapy indicates that animal-human friendships may promote both physical and mental well-being such as:

- A lifted spirit
- Improved cardiovascular health
- Increased comfort and relaxation
- More smiling and moments of joy
- Decreased anxiety, agitation and aggression
- Reduced feelings of loneliness and isolation
- Enhanced communication, engagement and socialization

"There is nothing like unconditional love and the joy that pets give us," Poet's Walk Sarasota Executive Director Colby Quisenberry, said recently. "We see it every day in our residents. When a pet therapy dog comes to visit, someone's day gets a little better. We see them smile a little more and a light comes back into their eyes."

Poet's Walk's Pet Therapy program is based on practices from its parent company Spring Hills Senior Communities. A family recently wrote to tell them how happy they are that pet therapy is a regular activity. "...They have animals there that visit. Recently they had alpaca's; they were adorable and the residents loved them. Our loved one gets great care and I would recommend them to others," she said.

According to Mayo Clinic, “Animal-assisted therapy can significantly reduce pain, anxiety, depression and fatigue in people with a range of health problems” which includes “people in long-term care facilities, veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder, and people receiving cancer treatment.”

Poet’s Walk Sarasota is located at 5851 North Honore Avenue in Sarasota, FL 34243. For more information about Poet’s Walk Sarasota, please contact Colby Quisenberry, Executive Director, at 941-584-5575 and visit <http://www.poetswalk-springhills.com/assisted-living-facility-sarasota-fl/>.
