Philadelphia, PA (May 10, 2016) – Is it classic rock or is it Jazz? According to The Jost Project – it's both! On Wednesday, May 18 from 8 to midnight, The Jost Project returns to Chris' Jazz Café with guest drummer Doug Hirlinger. Comprised of internationally renowned vibraphonist Tony Miceli, vocalist Paul Jost and bassist Kevin MacConnell, The Jost Project will perform their highly respected jazz renditions of classic rock, adding folk as well to the mix. Chris' Jazz Café is located at 1421 Sansom Street, Philadelphia. Cover charge is $10 and can be purchased at www.chris-jazz-cafe.seatengine.com. For more information, call 215-568-3131.

The Jost Project, whose music is heard regularly on the Real Jazz channel of SiriusXM Radio, has been performing throughout the world taking their music to South Korea (for two summer tours) and to Ireland. Playing in New York and throughout PA and NJ, this Philadelphia-based band brings attention to jazz by reaching into the "baby boomer" and subsequent generations that came of age with rock and roll, the Beatles, hard rock, and other genres which are rarely played by jazz groups. With raves from many reviewers and music industry experts, Johan van Deeg wrote in Jazz in Europe, "The Jost Project is without a doubt one of the most creative bands I have heard for years."
