Philly Jazz Guide: Top picks for live music around town in May

May 1st, 2017 | 8:50AM | By Shaun Brady

If you're still riding the festival high and want to keep it up for another weekend, the inaugural Germantown Music Festival arrives just in time. Looking to draw some positive attention to the neighborhood that they call home, vibraphonist Tony Miceli, flutist Anne Levinson and drummer and Rittenhouse Soundworks found Jim Hamilton banded together to produce the daylong celebration, which will take place at several venues in the area including Hamilton's. Headliners include The Jost Project, the classic rock-oriented jazz quartet that includes Miceli and singer Paul Jost; Levinson's Germantown Flute Trio; Hamilton's Forro Duo, with accordionist Rob Curto; and a quartet co-led by Germantown native Monnette Sudler and violinist Diane Monroe.
